MIC DROP

SYNOPSIS

MIC DROP is the first documentary to illustrate the origin story of Christian Hip Hop (CHH). It tells the story of the genre's evolution from emerging underground movement to youth-culture staple — making it essential viewing for fans and newcomers alike. With appearances from artists like Chris Cooper (SFC), Stephen Wiley, Dynamic Twins, Gospel Gangstaz, Fred Lynch (P.I.D.), Pettidee, and Michael Peace to music executives Jimmy Kempner (Frontline Records) and Joseph Taylor (Broken Records), this film is able to tap into the heart of the “grass roots movement” that began the early 1980's and still continues to thrive today.

NOBODY'S CHILDREN

This film recovers one of the last hidden stories of the Buenos Aires underground: the journey of Los Adolfos Rap, a pioneering rap group in Argentina. Archival footage and testimonials from artists such as Jazzy Mel or the Illya Kuryaki give an account of a phenomenon that was as original as it was intense, opening a path for many current rappers. The film, which participated in the BAFICI 2019 Musical Selection, is the first feature film from Panza Films, a production company based in Buenos Aires and São Paulo created by Pablo Apezteguía, Damián Marsicano, and Maximiliano Sachetti.

PROJETO RAPPERS – THE FRIST BRAZILIAN HIP HOP HOUSE

SYNOPSIS

This documentary presents the encounter between Black and peripheral youth practicing Hip-hop culture and Black feminism in the streets of São Paulo during the late 1980s, which gave rise to the “Rappers Project”. An innovative initiative, it brought voice and protagonism to young victims of racism and social exclusion through the building a space for formation and political articulation in defense of their rights, especially to practice Hip-hop culture in public spaces and to be able to move around the city without being a victim of truculence and violence perpetrated by the police, in addition to creating the first national communication instrument of this movement, the magazine “Pode Crê!”.
